The World Must Be Coming Tae An End

Lyrics

We sent her for eggs, oh aye, oh aye.

We sent her for eggs, oh aye, oh aye.

We sent her for eggs, and she fell and broke her legs.

Oh, the world must be comin tae an end, oh aye.

We sent her for cheese…and she fell and skint her knees

We sent her for butter… and she dropped it in the gutter

We sent her for jam… and she brought back ham

We sent her for breid… and she drapped doon deid

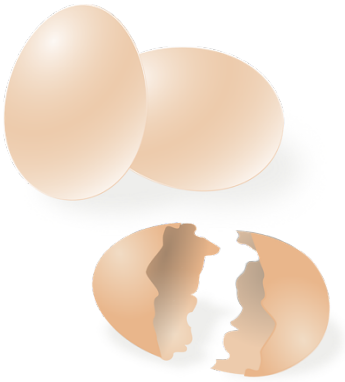
Activity 1

Can you write your own verses to the song? Think about things you might buy at the shops and what might go wrong! How many verses can you make up that rhyme?

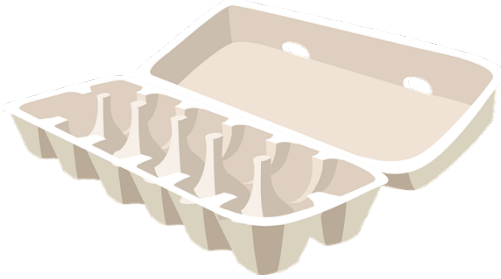


Activity 2

Can you write about a time something went wrong and how you managed the situation? Write down as many different ways you could have handled the situation and put a star next to the one you think would have the best outcome.

Activity 3

Split a piece of paper into six boxes to create a storyboard. In each of the boxes draw a different picture of the things which happen in the song.



Activity 4

Using a balloon and paper mache make a globe of the world. Once it has dried, paint on the sea and different countries.
